ABSTRACT

This directory contains a comprehensive listing of publications that may be appropriate for publication of academic research in technical education. Both research-based and trade publications related to technical education were used as bases for the guide, along with additional information about special interest publications. Complete synopses of the publications listed are provided, including title, editor, publisher, address, e-mail, Web site, telephone, fax, frequency of issue, circulation, acceptance rate, referred status, audience, acknowledgment, acceptance or rejection decision, publication time line, desired type of article, desired length, preferred style, number of paper and computer copies to submit, and editor's notes. The guide lists 91 journals. (KC)

Research in Technical Education: A Publication Guide
1st Edition
By: Matthew Kolcz Ms. Ed.

Statement of Purpose

Publication of academic research is the responsibility of faculty and advanced students in any area of study. The main reason for this is the need to continually improve upon the knowledge base available for the use of others interested in a given discipline. In many instances a clear framework has been developed through which researchers, practitioners and students have the opportunity to disseminate new knowledge, the result of research (including action studies) and synopses of best practices. This framework could include a specific journal or trade-specific publication. However, considering the diverse backgrounds and professional niches of interest in which individuals involved in technical education have specialized, the identification of appropriate knowledge dissemination channels may not be a straightforward task. Therefore, it was decided that a comprehensive listing of potential channels should be developed and disseminated. Upon the onset of this study, it was thought that the development of such a list would serve technical education specialists by providing publication focus, style and contact information. However this is only a secondary goal. The primary goal is to reduce the time involved in selecting the publication(s) appropriate to the nature of the work to be published.

Guide Development and Use

Both research-based and trade publications related to technical education were used as bases for this guide. However, additional information representing special interest publications has also been included. A great amount of effort has been spent in providing complete synopses of the publications included. Where possible, internet and/or e-mail addresses have been provided. In a few instances, telephone, fax numbers or e-mail addresses were not provided for use by publication administration.

Organization

The publication guide itself is organized alphabetically by publication title. Additional blank pages have provided for you to use in the recording of the attributes specific to additional publications that you have discovered, relevant to technical education, but not listed in the guide.

Conclusions

Ultimately, the utility of this guide will be determined by you. It is hoped that the document will make quick work of finding the most appropriate channels through which to bring new information to individuals involved with technical education. It is hoped that additional editions of this guide will be created. Your involvement is required, however. Please feel free to contact me by mail or by e-mail. The information you provide related to additional publications will be included in future editions.
